CONSPIRACY TO POISON.

THREE PRISONERS SENT TO PENAL SERVITUDE.

HETTY WHERLDON ACQUITTED.

At the Central Criminal Court, London, on Saturday, the trial was concluded of Mrs. Alice Wheeldon, aged 50; Harriet Ann (otherwise Hetty) Wheeldon, her daughter, aged 27; Winnie Mason, another daughter, aged 30; and Alfred George Mason, aged 24, husband of Winnie Mason, who were charged with conspiring, on divers dates, to kill and murder the kight Hon. David Lloyd George and the Right Hon. David Lloyd George and the Right Hon. David Lloyd George and the Right Hon. The pury found Alice Wheeldon guilty of conspiring, soliciting, and proposing murder; they found Hetty Wheeldon not guilty; and Winnie Mason and Alfred George Mason guilty of conspiracy.

Hetty Wheeldon was discharged.

Alice Wheeldon was sentenced to ten years' penal servitude, and Winnie Mason to live years' penal servitude.

When the prisoners were brought up, the Attorney-General began his cross-examination of Alfred George Mason, who returned to the witness box.

The Attorney-General—I understand you told HETTY WHEELDON ACQUITTED.

Is it not a fact that a smaller dose than half a grain has given rise to very grave symptoms in human beings? Yes.

Mr. Justice Low—Surely your study of criminology must have been very limited if you do not know—that strychnine has been used for the purposes of murder. Have you never heard of the Pulmer case? No.

Have not your studies in criminology extended so far as that? No.

The Attorney-General—Would it modify your yiews as to the quantity of strychnine which

The Attorney-General (emphatically,—It is suggested by me that your whole story about a dog is from beginning to end a lie. Do you understand that? Yes, I understand it.

That being so, supposing these words "or spread on bread" were in your original directions, it would suggest strongly, would it not, that the poison was intended for a human being? Possibly.

Is there any doubt about it? Yes, there is, because other things might be given to a dog.

Does that occur to you as a sensible observation? Yes.

Have you ever heard of strychnine being given

Witness, continuing, said he did not hold a certificate of exemption. His allusion in the correspondence to "a hot push" related to his attempt to get a post as dispenser on a liner.

Dr. Spilsbury, recalled, said that strychnine was found in cases of murder, and sometimes in cases of accidental poisoning. It could be taken in a variety of ways, and might be

SUGGESTED TRIAL BY ORDEAL. Mr. Riza then addressed the jury on behalf of the prisoners. He characterised the prosecution as vile and vindictive—a prosecution not only dangerous to the accused, but to the general body of the public. He ventured to say that it was the first case of its kind in Engand heaves the reason introduced a mysterious

Mr. Riza—I do, my lord, in order to prove their innocence.

His Lordship—Then they cannot do it. (Laughter.) If you have anything serious to suggest put it.

Mr. Riza resumed by submitting that the language in the letters, though bad, was not necessarily proof of a vindictive mind. Had this case been taken up by Scotland Yard he would have been satisfied. It was not a prosecution, but a persecution. Such expressions as "He ought to be shot," "He ought to be hanged," were common at times of political crisis. Take the case of Ulster. They remembered how in that province all sorts of threats were used, but they were never intended to materialise. He submitted that the prosecution had utterly failed to show how the alleged plot was to be carried into effect. The evidence for the Crown was inconsistent and inconclusive.

POSITION OF HETTY WHEELDON.

Referring to the part which Hetty Wheeldon had played in this drama, he said that as a woman having experience of public life she would not be easily taken in, and from the first she came to the conclusion that Gordon was a spy. That fact she communicated to her mother, as the evidence showed. Hetty Wheeldon desired to improve the country by organising the people, not by assassination.

His Lordship—I shall tell the jury that there is no evidence that Hetty ever saw the contents of the parcel.

Mr. Risa thanked his lordship. Touching next on his clients' letter, in which Zeppelins were alluded to, he submitted that one or two unfortunate expressions were not sufficient foundation for a foul conspiracy to murder.

His Lordship pointed to the reference, "What about Lloyd George and his visit to God's Vicar?" and remarked, "The importance of that is in the context."

Mr. Risa contended that in the correspondence there was no evidence to support the theory that the poisons sent by Mason to Derby were intended to be used against human beings. The prosecution, he said, asked the jury to believe that Mason had poisons in his possession ready to offer them to whomsoever wanted to take human life. It was an atrocious and shocking story to ask any twelve men to accept. In the absence of Gordon, he asked the jury to refuse to convict either of the accused persons, and where two possible constructions were possible he appealed to them to adopt that construction which was most favourable to his innocent clients.

The Attorney-General, on behalf of the dence to justify the jury in coming to the conclusion that Mrs. Mason acted under the control of her husband. "Of all kinds of murder, continued his lordship, "the most dangerous, and the most criminal is rurridre by polson. A conspiracy to murder by polson is the worst conspiracy of all; and where people have conspiracy of all; and where people have conspiracy of all; and where people have conspiracy of all; and where a construction of the king." His lordship met dealt with the question of secret spying heat dealt with the position and coming to a conclusion upon them." If the jury considered that the absence of Gordon was fast to the prosecution's case, they were entitled to senvice the charges, they were entitled to convict the prisoners. There was one count of the indicting to murder. In respect of that the count, there would appear to be only evidence against Mrs. Wheeldon; but, of course, that dependent of the control of the case to a large extent would fail. Calling sp tion, preached a sermon upon "Out Heritage," He spoke of Dublin Unitarians' heritage of religious freedom, which now ex-tended back two-and-a-half centuries; and he showed that in such freedom consisted the THE VERDICT.

THE VERDICT.

The jury, having retired at 7.15, returned into court at 7.40, and the prisoners were again placed in the dock.

Replying to the usual questions by the Clerk of Arraigns, the foreman said that the jury found Alice Wheeldon guilty on both counts of conspiring and of soliciting and proposing. They found Hetty Wheeldon not guilty. Alfred Mason they found guilty of conspiracy. Winnie Mason they found guilty of conspiracy. Winnie Mason they found guilty of conspiring. They recommended the Masons to leniency on account of their youth.

He then addressed Mrs. Wheeldon, saying that the jury could have only arrived at one conclusion. He had no alternative but to sentence her to ten years' penal servitude. Mrs. I Wheeldon was at once conducted from the dock. Next addressing the two remaining prisoners, the judge said that but for the recommendation of the jury he would have indicted to the content of the first way. soners, the judge said that but for the recommendation of the jury he would have indicted a like sentence upon Alfred Mason. The sentence upon him was penal servitude for seven years. "With regard to you, Winnie Mason," continued his lordship, "you also have been a party to a grave crume, but I feel that your position is largely due to the had and wicked influence of your mother. Again I feel bound by the view the jury have taken that some leniency ought to be shewn you. The sentence of the Court upon you is that you be kept in penal servitude for five years."

The judge released the jury from further service for seven years.

general body of the public. He ventured to my that it was the first case of its kind in England, because there was introduced a mysterious Government agent. What, he asked, was the difficulty in producing Gordon? If the presence of Mr. Lloyd George had been required he would not have been the man to shirk coming there. Secret agents were dangerous, and he hoped that it had not come to this pass that men and women had to answer anything that a secret agent chose to enter in his notebook. I challenge the prosecution to produce Gordon, exclaimed Mr. Riza. I demand that the presence of a consecution to produce Gordon, exclaimed Mr. Riza. I demand that the presence of the court upon you is that you be kept in the consecution of the pass that men and women had to answer anything a consecution to produce for don, exclaimed Mr. Riza. I demand that the presence of secret agent chose to enter in his notebook. I challenge the prosecution shall produce him, so that he may be subjected to cross-examination. It is only in those parts of the world where secret agents are introduced that the most atrocious crimes are introduced that the world where secret agent in the evidence of Booth:

Ballsbridge Soldiers' Club.—About one hundred wounded soldiers, brought from the different nospitals in the city, were entertained on Saturday at the Club which has been set up in the Art Industries' Hall, Ballsbridge, by the members of the Automobile Club. A variety programme, under the management of Alderman James Moran, was provided by the following:—Broom and James, Miss Maisie Rowlands, Tivoli Theatre; Miss Curran and Miss Lawton, Empire; Miss Kitty Emson, Miss Copping, and Ernest Ball, Theatre Royal. Mr. Cathal McGarvey contributed some humorous stories, which were greatly appreciated. Among the visitors were General and Mrs. Fry, the Master of the Rolls, Mrs. MacDermott, Mr. Justice Barton, Mrs. Barton, Sir George Roche, Mr. and Mrs. Granby Burke, Mr. Bruce Hamilton, Mr. Nicholas Proud. At the close of the programme the men sat down to tea and cake, and were waited on by a number of ladies, a charge of Mrs. Sexton. The soldiers amused themselves with all manner of games during the day, and were driven back to the hospitals in taxis.

Boys Injured.—William Moore, aged 13, had one of his legs broken while playing football on Sunday afternoon, in St. Janges's Park, Dolphia's Barn. He was conveyed in the Corporation ambulance to the Meath Hospital. A Rathmines youth named John Bushev injured his head last night by falling off his bicycle at Harold's Cross Bridge. He, too, was hrought in the ambulance to the M REGISTERED LETTER MISSING. ENNISCORTHY, SATURDAY.

Last evening a mysterious occurrence in connection with the conveyance of the postal mail bags from Clonegal (Co. Carlow) to Ferns Railway Station took place. It appears that the motor car in which they were being convoyed went out of order outside of Newtownbarry, with the result that it had to be wheeled back to that town, and the mails transferred to a fresh motor car progred from Ferns. When the Post Office of the latter town was reached it was discovered that the Kildavin mail bag had been opened, and a registered letter containing about £3 10s. was missing. Neither the driver of the mail car nor the passengers who were with him on the journey can account for the occurrence. The receipt for the missing registered letter and two other letters bearing the Kildavin post mark were, it is said, found on the streets of Newtownbarry at the point where the transference of the mail bags from one car to the other took place. District Inspector R. R. Heggart, Enniscorthy, and the police at Newtownbarry, are investigating the affair. (FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

confronting the whole trade union movement.

Owing to the prolonged smallness of the demand for cotton yarns, a movement has been organized in Oldham, the centre of the spinning industry, for a week's stoppage of the mills at Easter. The main reasons advanced in Yavour of this course are that losses would be lessened and railway companies would have an opportunity of reducing the large piles of undelivered goods which crowd their warehouses. Thousands of operatives would be affected.

The River Dialah was capable of quite inexcusable language, joins the Tigris at a point some eight miles and said that it was common among below Bagdad. A War Office communique tells us that on Thursday night, in spite of a bright moon, our troops effected a generalise about English school teachers surprise crossing of the Dialah. On the same day the Tigris had been bridged at a point below the city. Our attack, though hampered by dust-storms and gales, made such good progress that we soon held few of the English primary schools is of positions which were only three miles to the south and west of our goal. The story of those three miles remains to be told, but the whole conduct of the campaign allows us to assume certain things. The life of the present Parliament must come to an end in May unless the Government brings in a Bill asking for a new lease of life, a course which will almost certainly be followed. It is known that the Opposition would offer no objection to any such Bill, and at present there seems to be no reason why the life of the present Parliament should not be extended. It is, in fact, understood in political circles that it will be extended for six months from the end of April. This would carry Major W. Redmond makes an appeal in the Observer to-day for a meeting of the different Irish parties to reconcile their grievances. If only they would make this concession, I personally believe there is no guarantee or safeguard, however unnecessary it might be considered, which would not be gladly conceded to allay the suspicion or fears of the Ulster Unionists. If the followers of Sir Edward Carson would but come this step forward and agree to the principle of meeting their own countrymen in an assembly for the good government of Ireland, I believe everything else would be comparatively easy. Government certainly has nothing to gain by a secret Session, while such a proceeding at the present moment would raise suspicion in the public mind, already seriously upset and disconcerted by the Dardanelles Commission report.

Several Irish proposed amendments to the National Service Bill have been put down on the Order Paper. Mr. J. P. Farrell proposes a new clause that "this Act shall not apply to Ireland." Mr. Hazleton also proposes a new clause, to

Most of the epitaphs on the crosses were shot and concise, and ran as thus:

And under it, stamped on a bronze plate, was the information:—"Erected by the Mobile Unit (B.R.C.S.), to preserve the record found on the appl."

BAGDAD IN BRITISH HANDS. The Detish Army of Mesopotamia, says The Times, captured Bagdad yesterday, and shattered the dream which the Pan-Germans have been dreaming for more than twenty years. The German route to the East is blocked, and the existing terminus of the Bagdad Railway has passed into our hands. Great though this achievement may well be reckoned from the military point of view, the moral effect will be even greater. To the watching East it will seem to sound the knell of German aspirations. To the Germans themselves it will mean the ignominious col-lapse of a scheme to which they directed infinite, subtle, and secret labour, and the frustration of one of the principal objects for which they wantonly set the world ablaze. The culminating operations of our forces appear to have been conducted with remarkable skill, and they closed with actions on both sides of the River Tigris. There is no harm in saying now that Sir Stanley Maude smashed the Turkish Army centring on Kut even more thoroughly than the public are quite aware. In the laborious series of movements on the right bank of the Tigris epposite and above Kut, which were protracted through many days, he inflicted terrible losses on the Turks. Thousands of prisoners were taken, and time after time the Turkish dead were found in heaps. When the Turkish Army broke and bolted for Bagdad, it was not much more than a remnant. On all their main campaigning fronts the Turks are falling back, while their power in Arabia is now broken.

THE WAR AGAINST TURKEY.

After the fall of Kut, says The Times, Major Moraht wrote, in the Berliner Tageblatt, that was not yet possible to see whether the "whether it represented a methodical with-drawal, such as has been repeatedly carried of the Central Powers, in order to create more favourable fighting conditions for the future and the decision." Major Moraht was also " not yet able to see whether the British move-ment would aim at Bagdad." The boldest acant of the situation, however, is that in which the Military Correspondent of the Frankfurter Zeitung, just a week ago, explained that all operations against Turkey are of little importance, because the war is only to last six months, and they cannot be completed. "In such cirstances the operations must be ascribed merely to British covetousness at the expense of England's Allies."

THE CASE OF THE MELITA.

The Special Correspondent of The Times at Amsterdam, telegraphing under date March 7 (delayed), says:—The Maasbode, commenting on the Princess Melita incident, says that in a certain sense it is a "test ship," which found the rules of the Dutch Government not to be trifled with. The newspaper points out that these rules differ from those of all other countries concerning armed merchantmen, and it anticipates a certain amount of anger in England arising from the decision of the Princess Melita to throw overboard its gun and ammunition. The Maasbode regards it as praiseworthy, so long as the rules are unaltered, that they be enforced, but says that, whether the Dutch Government's attitude can, or will, be maintained in future is a matter for that Government to decide.

In the course of the debate in the Chamber last night, M. Klotz, President of the Budget Committee, reproached the Government with having no economic policy, and declared that he could not give it his vote of confidence. He said that the Committee, notably the Budget Committee, shad again made representations to the Government, urging it to take steps dealing with the provisioning of the country, while there was yet time.

there was yet time.

M. Briand, Premier, replying, asked the Chamber to pronounce a clear vote between the Government and those who continually attacked it. The Government, he said, was conattacked it. The Government, he said, was conscious of having done everything possible, in face of an extremely difficult situation. The Army was abundantly provided for, and could face the enemy with full confidence. M. Briand complained of the discontent which, in spite of votes of confidence, continued after the preceding debates. The Government would like to feel round it the agreement of all those who were well disposed, at a thne when there ought to be, in the nation, and in Parliament, neither a majority nor a minority. The Government felt itself powerless to reach this desirable state of affairs, and it was painful to have to state the fact in the present circumstances. The Chamber must declare clearly whether the Government had done its duty, or whether it Woodhead, thanking him for his timely as generous offer, and accepting the land on bhalf of the citizens.

The great snowstorm of the past week partysed labour to such an extent that some farmed in the Co. Monaghun have become impates owing to the backward state of farming operations, and on Friday and Saturday last, whithe snow still covered the ground to a deption of some inches, plough teams were at work it several districts.

One hundred sheep which were grazing on Congested Districts Board farm in the Co. Singo were driven off some nights ago. As unsuccessful effort was made recently by adjoining tenants to have the land let for tillage.

Most Rev. Dr. Coyne, Roman Catholic Bishophas given the ground in front of his palace to a number of families for tillage.

The Athlone District Council made an order on Saturday that isbourers holding cottages from them who had not their allotments tilled by Saturday week should be forthwith evicted. A return showed that in most instances the cottage plots were already tilled.

FINANCIAL NEWS

LONDON STOCK MARKETS FIRM.

WAR NEWS GOOD. AMERICA AND FOREIGN

SECURITIES. SATURDAY HOLIDAY.

(FROM OUR FINANCIAL CORRESPONDENT.)
LONDON, SATURDAY.

The usual week-end influences were operative on the Stock Exchange, both the volume of business and the attendance of members being thin. On the whole, however, the tone was good. The war news both from the western of the United States Federal Reserve Board advising American banks to put their surplus resources into foreign securities made an excellent impression. The announcement embedies a direct contradiction of the statement issued by the Board last autumn warning banks against locking up their funds in foreign obligations. In one view it is regarded as a tribute to cur Loan success, and in another it is probably not unconnected with the unwillingness of the British Government in the face of the recent financial attitude of New York to renew contracts on the other side. Gilt-edged issues advanced and reacted. Home Rails were colourless, but Americans were generally higher from New York, where greater confidence prevailed overnight. Argentine Rails showed no material change after their recent raily. Allied Bonds enjoyed steadiness in the Foreign market. There was quiet support for Rubber Shares, and Marconis were a good feature.

Although no official announcement has yet been made in regard to the matter, it is still understood that to-day will be the last Saturday that the Stock Exchange will remain open for some time to come—possibly until the end of the war.

The Irish Land Loan receded \(\) to 524. The

In the Foreign market both business and the number of net changes in quotations were small. Afflied Bonds did not lose their good undertone owing to the favourable character of the war news. Russian Fives were firm at 82. French Fives held 1 of a forenoon advance, closing at 791. Spanish Bonds held their overnight rise. Japanese descriptions, though quiet, were very firm. South American Sectrities displayed marked irregularity. Peruvians were offered. On the other hand, Uruguay 51 commell Laird. 14. 15. PAYABLE TO THE CONGESTED DISTRICTS BOARD IS £12 14s. 9d., and the P.L. VALUATION IS £32
PARTICULARS.

THIS IS AN IDEAL HOLDING, situate within four miles of Ballina, and within easy reach of Lough Conn, where Free Fishing and Shooting can be had.

THE RESIDENCE is approached by a handsome drive, built on the model of an English Villa, has a Southern expect, and is in as good repair, externally and internally, as it constructed two years ago, and without trace of damp. Residence contains—Outer porch, hall, diningroom, drawingroom, 5 bedrooms, large landing, kitchen and pantry, and each apartment is well lighted, of convenient size.

The Residence is effectually sheltered by a shelter-belt of trees from all prevailing winds.

OFFICES comprise—Harness-room, coach-house, horse stable, cow stable (for four cows); three loose boxes, all these are in an esclosed yard, and have slated and fron roofs and cement and flagged floors. At the rear of the yard are cart house, fowl house, potato house, coal house, and store house.

There is a pump in the yard with never-failing supply of pure water.

THE FARM is laid out in an exemplary manner, divided into three suitable sized fields and a lawn; is fenced with high stone walls and double hedges, which provide excellent shelter.

THE LANDS are of excellent quality, having been for the past 25 years heavily manured with farmvard manure, without a particle of waste, and more profitable than a farm of twice the area. As A DAIRY FARM it for rearing Thoroughbred Stock. Vendor has the right of Free Turbary quite convenient.

POSSESSION CAN BE GIVEN ON COMPLETION OF THE PURCHASE. Terms and Conditions at SALE, WHICH WILL TAKE PLACE ON THE LANDS AT 12 O'CLOCK SALE, WHICH WILL TAKE PLACE ON THE LANDS AT 12 O'CLOCK
